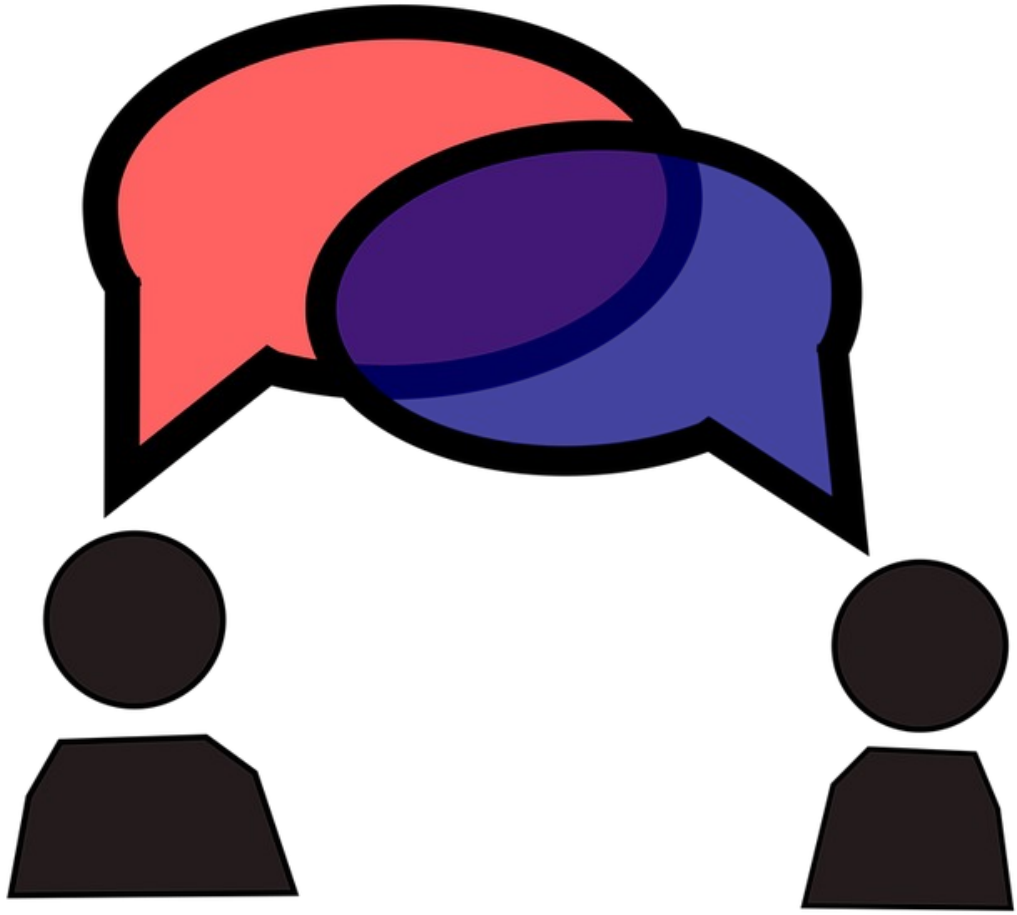
A Compilation of Weird Conversations



By Nilay Bhardwaj

Conversation 1 (13 February 2026)

Speaker A: You would not find a better fighter than me in any corner of the world.

Speaker B: Yeah! That's understandable as the Earth is round.

A: I feel you can stop this nonsense and at the very least start respecting me for all that I have done for you.

B: I don't think you have done anything significant for me except what was in your best interest.

A: If ungratefulness had a face it was certainly you.

B: And you would be the face of ego by that logic.

A: It's okay. I don't even want to argue at this point.

B: You better not do

Conversation 2 (13 February 2026)

Speaker Q: Do you think conflict is inevitable?

Speaker X: Nxg4 was a blunder!!!!!

Q: When a blind man regains sight, the first thing he throws away is his stick, which supported him throughout his blindness.

X: This reminds of the scene that occured the Capitol building last year.

Q: I feel that people will come and go but what.... WHAT!!! Kxf2 IS HE A FOOL???...

X: What will be left would be their dead bodies.

Q: No.. no no. I got a little carried away. But what will be left here forever is this universe.

X: I am not even looking at the engine at this point.

Q: Will you die for this country if need arises?

X: I regret I have only one life to lay down for my country! If need arises I will capture Beijing and Moscow alone.

Q: This reminds me of the mechanic who told me that he made the horns louder as he could not fix the brakes.

X: You won't find a better fighter than me in any corner of the Earth...

Q: As the Earth is round

X: What? -M6 how can he do this????

Q: He can do it similar to how you can capture the capital cities of world's largest country and the largest economy.

X: Wait! It's all over for Ghana?

Q: He would miss M6. I can guarantee.

X: Let's see. But wait, why have you been insulting me all this time?

Q: You take it as an insult?

X: Yeah! How can you say something like that to a retired brigadier???

Q: That's why I am a diplomat and you are a troop.

X: OH! HOW CAN WE GET +2.34 FROM -M6!!!??

Q: I told you.

X: Makes sense, you have played this game all your life.

Q: It's an important call, I need to leave. Good night.

What is the initial impression that you form of it?

Conversation 3 (14 February 2026)

Ben: This window looks cracked.

Tim: The sky is beautiful anyways.

Ben: Tyres dont move on their own, people do.

Tim: The car ain't coming to life now.

B: Eww... Moaning would work I feel.

T: If it would, the earth would be triangular.

B: Don't remind me of the axis.

T: If you wish to shine like the sun, you need to burn like the sun.

B: Whose son HAVE YOU BURNT?????

T: Doesn't matter.

B: Nxg2 is a BLUNDER!!! HOW CAN HE DO THIS?

T: It would have been a goal otherwise. This will win him 6 wickets.

B: God damn it. This game does not have wickets. This is not your bloody cricket.

T: You remind me of the mechanic who told me that he made the horns louder as he could not fix the brakes.

B: You visit mechanics? What vehicle do you even have??? A cycle?

T: The world will see my sacrifices one day. My silence will make more noise than your roars.

B: You can't jump a storey and say that this makes me strong.

T: I think I can perform that stunt.

B: Never

T: You won't find a better stunt performer than me in any corner of the world.

B: Yeah as the world is round.

T: Wait let me do it.

B: Let me make advance arrangements.

911 operator: Hello 911, what's your emergency?

B: Kindly send an ambulance to my location within half an hour.

911: Sure sir. Is there anything else you need help with.

B: No thanks.

T: OUCH!!! IT HURTS, WHERE ARE YOU BEN?????

B: Oh! That's really painful. Look, we also have an ambulance right here.

Ambulance staff: The wounds look fresh. We need to perform first aid right here.

T: PLEASE! OUCH

B: I think we need to reach the hospital.

Ambulance driver: Sure get him on.

Conversation 4 (16 February 2026)

Speaker 1: I regret I have only one life to lay down for my country.

Speaker 2: This reminds me of the mechanic who told me that he made the horns louder as he could not fix the brakes.

Speaker 1: Fixing the brakes is a long path, we need something for the meantime too.

Speaker 2: You know what? Sometimes I feel that their silence has accomplished more than your loud roars have.

Speaker 1: Do you think they would have been able to kick the enemies our like me?

Speaker 2: I don't think calling them "enemies" fix the problem. I would prefer a more empathetic approach to negotiate and build a rapport. Their silence carries moral weight while your loud roars are seen as demonstrations of arrogance.

Speaker 1: I don't care how my actions are seen. Security is anyways my first priority.

Speaker 2: You won't always be powerful and mark my words, you will be held accountable.

Speaker 1: I don't think we are going to reach an agreement like this.

Speaker 2: We are in no obligation to reach an agreement. You have your own problems, I have my own.

Speaker 1: But we have to make an interim deal, or you have some other plans?

Speaker 2: I would love a deal but won't be willing to strech too much for it.

Speaker 1: Same here. But I am willing to listen to your offer.

Speaker 2: I would need to consult my team.

Speaker 1: I can wait.

(After 15 minutes)

Speaker 2: Sorry for the delay, we have it on the table.

Speaker 1: Go ahead

Speaker 2: So I suggest a 35 % share, £ 200,000 @7.8 p.a %., two seats in the council and one in the board be granted to us.

Speaker 1: I can't concede that much.

Speaker 2: What do you propose instead?

Speaker 1: I can decide once you give me a written copy of the offer from CFT's side.

Speaker 2: I will have to get it printed.

Speaker 1: No issues, my team has noted it down, you can just sign on the behalf of CFT.

Speaker 2: That works.

(After 20 minutes)

Speaker 1: So I have come up with two counter-offers. You can accept either. I can give

A 22 % share, £200,000 @ 8.9 % p.a. and a seat in the council

Or

A 30 % share and £200,000-£ 250,000 @ 0% p.a.

Speaker 2: The second offer seems more like selling our representation and the first one gives us neither material nor strategic assets. I can't accept any of them.

Speaker 1: I guess we can negotiate further in the next meeting. It has been 7 hours and also little late at night,

Speaker 2: I agree. We can have the joint statement then.

(Both sign the joint statement)

Speaker 1: Nice to meet you.

Speaker 2: Hoping to see you soon.

(Both leave)

Conversation 5 (1 March 2026)

Scene 1

Speaker 1: The rats are all the cotton last night and hence we have no stock in reserve.

Speaker 2: THE RATS ???? And for what did you withdraw $25,000 from the treasury? Rat poison right? Then how did such an incident happen?

Speaker 1: I think there has been an accounting error. It was only $250, and not for rat poison but to tame a cat to fix the rat issue.

Speaker 2: OH GOD!! WHO the hell withdrew the money then?

Speaker 1: Accounts are handled by Mr. Harshit so you can ask him for accountability.

Speaker 2: Oh! God damn it! Her shit won't see the dawn if I get some evidence.

Speaker 1: That is totally upto you sir. I just want to clarify that I was handed over only $250 to tame cats in the premises

Speaker 2: Okay!! Don't overreact now! AND WHO THE HELL DEALS WITH RATS BY TAMING CATS?????? We live in a modern society. I don't want to make this place a zoo,

Speaker 1: Sir, taming cats to deal with rats is based on basic ecological understanding.

Speaker 2: DAMN IT! I will deal with you later on. First, let me find this her shit.

Speaker 1: It's Harshit sir, not her shit.

Speaker 2: Shut up!!!

(Speaker 2 leaves)

Scene 2: 32 hours later

Speaker 1: Good evening sir.

Speaker 2: The evening's not good but anyways. I am glad that at least people are being held accountable unlike the previous administration.

Speaker 1: Why's the evening not good sir?

Speaker 2: Imagine having more than twenty thousand dollars missing.

Speaker 1: I feel your pain, I share your grief. But don't worry sir. By the way, I had to share some news with you.

Speaker 2: Go ahead.

Speaker 1: I have a bad news and a good news. Which one would you like to hear first?

Speaker 2: I am not in a mood to listen to any more bad news now. Go ahead with the good one.

Speaker 1: Sure! The cats ate at least 24 mice last night and many have fled the premises. So I can tell you with confidence that mice are no longer an issue for us.

Speaker 2: Thank God! Glad to hear that... But wait, what's the bad news then?

Speaker 1: Sir, the bad news is that the cats maimed two of our workers with their claws and the blood of many mice combined with cat poop has ruined the floor of the building at a time when both the janitors are at leave so we won't be able to work for 3 days.

Speaker 2: WOW! I am here to hear this. I don't even have words to say anything to you. I already saw something like this coming. How can I even expect sanity from a lunatic like you.

Speaker 1: I am sorry sir, but let me tell you something, we accomplished the task of removing the mice at 1% of the allocated budget. Though I regret the collateral damage, I don't take it as a mistake.

Speaker 2: Oh come on! Two people have been maimed and you have the audacity to tell me that it wasn't a mistake. Who do you think you are? God? Go and apologize publicly. And I want to have rat poison delivered tomorrow to the premises, and won't allow any animals in the premises.

Speaker 1: But...

Speaker 2: This is an order. No questions asked.

Speaker 1: Sir, you just mentioned accountability and are now disallowing questions.

Speaker 2: Yeah! Because questions and points are taken from competent people.

Speaker 1: But sir, I fear something like the 2019 incident could happen if we order rat poison in large quantities.

Speaker 2: Follow my order without question.

Speaker 1: As you wish sir. The onus is on you now

Conversation 6 (10 March 2026)

Speaker 1: Good evening. So how's it going?

Speaker 2: If 11 in the night is evening then I wonder when are you going to sleep.

Speaker 1: Oh come on! I will sleep right now if you keep taunting me like this.

Speaker 2: Please! Drive carefully for God's sake. Highway driving and that too at night is not a joke.

Speaker 1: Oh! You have got great knowledge about driving. Appreciate that. I insist you should drive instead today.

Speaker 2: That is not funny at all !

Speaker 1: Not everybody can be as funny as your face indeed.

(Speaker 2 recieves a phone call)

Speaker 2: Excuse me.

(Speaker 1 mutes the music)

Speaker 1: You are excused.

Speaker 2 (on the phone): Hello..... (Long pause+ careful listening) Oh I am so sorry.... That's sad to hear..... Do you need anything? ..... Be comfortable, I am just like your elder sister ask me if you need anything ever..... Don't cry. Be a man. Stay strong..... Okay. Take care.... (Hangs up)

Speaker 1: Is everything okay?

Speaker 2: That old man just died.

Speaker 1: Mr. Raj?

Speaker 2: Yup. Why did you mute the music? I am done with the call.

(Speaker 1 unmutes the low volume music)

Speaker 1: I think you should have some etiquettes referring to a person of his stature and calibre.

Speaker 2: What etiquettes? Do you know what he was indulged in?

Speaker 1: Oh come on! That is all false allegations. At least have a basic respect for him. What did he not do for you ?

Speaker 2: But I feel he was kinda creepy and psychopathic, especially since June when that lift malfunction incident happened.

Speaker 1: You know? He was ill for over 8 months. Every day or the other being rushed to hospital, can you imagine how that would have felt? No doubt it created a psychosis which affected his mind.

Speaker 2: But still, the kind of things he has said, and even about you. I wonder why you even went there everyday. Don't you think you sold your self respect in the greed for money.

Speaker 1: No. It was never about money. Do you know what he did for me? My education, exam coaching and everything I needed, he provided throughout my life. He acted as a mentor and helped me whenever I felt low. He shared his knowledge with me and often showed the path ahead. When life was uncertain, he stood by me. Last year was the time to repay. When he needed me the most, I couldn't refrain myself from coming to aid.

Speaker 2: Really? But talking about the last few months... (Gets interrupted)

Speaker 1: You know what? You are weighing a bond that formed over almost a decade with a few months. I admit that his mental condition might not be perfect for the past few months, but that doesn't give you or anyone the right to disrespect such a great personality.

Speaker 2: It is very difficult to believe you. If I take your claims at face value... (Gets interrupted)

Speaker 1: Should I drop you here or at the next turn?

Speaker 2: Next turn.

Speaker 1: It's almost midnight now. Is it safe for you or should I escort.

Speaker 2: No, I'll manage it's just a 200 m walk.

Speaker 1: Just? Wait I am coming.

Speaker 2: Oh! It's unnecessary. Please. I can manage myself.

Speaker 1: Better safe than sorry.

Speaker 2: (sighs) Oh come then.

(Speaker 1 parks the car and they begin walking)

Speaker 2: By the way you really care if something bad happens to me?

Speaker 1: Of course .. (short pause) not. But the police will make my life hell if such a scene occurs so I have to think about that also.

Speaker 2: Yeah! Yeah! The police. Yeah! At least admit now that you care for me. There's nothing wrong in that.

Speaker 1: Keep imagining things.

Speaker 2: Don't blush at least now. I won't kill you for accepting that.

Speaker 1: Another facet of your crazy dreams.

Speaker 2: Yeah yeah! My dreams. Yeah! Mine really?

Speaker 1: Yes yours. And look there's your home already.

Speaker 2: Oh yeah I forgot! Okay bye good night.

Speaker 1: Bye! Sweet dreams

Conversation 7 (20 March 2026)

Speaker 1: So where can we go for the trip?

Speaker 2: Umm.... I think finalising the dates first would be a wise move.

Speaker 1: Okay. Next week would work?

Speaker 2: Not on the weekend or Wednesday. Rest everything is okay.

Speaker 1: How about 23rd?

Speaker 2: I have some chores in the morning that day.

Speaker 1: We can plan a night drive. You will love it.

Speaker 2: I am afraid with a driver like you we will both end up in a hospital or perhaps something even worse.

Speaker 1: FOR YOUR KIND INFORMATION, I HAVE A GOVERNMENT CERTIFIED LICENSE TO DRIVE. People who have never held a steering in hand have no right to comment on my driving skills.

Speaker 2: Yeah, YOU HAVE A LICENSE, how can I forget that. But a license is obviously worth the trouble of failing the test 2 times despite bribing the testing official every attempt.

Speaker 1: Yeah, that time I didn't know how to drive, and you are right here but as soon as I got my license we bought a car and I learnt driving and have been driving for 3 months now so you can have faith in me.

Speaker 2: I think I will conduct my own test to certify that. Can't have faith in the RTO.

Speaker 1: I would love to clear your test... Ma'am.

Speaker 2: That "ma'am" feels kinda creepy to me.

Speaker 1: Oh I am really sorry if that's the case, I didn't mean to cause any trouble. This won't repeat again.

Speaker 2: This won't suffice. I need a formal apology.

Speaker 1: Okay. Anything else? Should I now fall into your feet to beg pardon.

Speaker 2: You can try that but I feel at least death penalty should be given for that kind of words.

Speaker 1: Okay. Stop pulling my leg now. Let's be back to the topic.

Speaker 2: 23rd works. We can meet after 2.

Speaker 1: Yeah! That would look great. 2 a.m... empty roads at the night, 150 mph.. (gets interrupted)

Speaker 2: 2 p.m.

Speaker 1: In the afternoon? you will die of sweat and sunburn.

Speaker 2: Better than dying in a car accident at 150 miles.

Speaker 1: Oh god! Why are you so paranoid? What do you want me to do to establish trust ?

Speaker 2: I don't know like.... After the parallel parking scene, it has been quite difficult for me lately.

Speaker 1: Gosh! That's four months ago. Please I beg you.. (gets interrupted)

Speaker 2: We will fight out your driving skills some other day but for now let's decide the venue.

Speaker 1: Okay. Good enough. What do you suggest?

Speaker 2: Should I ? Don't you have anything in mind?

Speaker 1: I know a lot of places but I feel it would not be great visiting with you. I want you to suggest something or the other so that I can later criticise you for deciding a boring place.

Speaker 2: (laughing) Wow! What a plan.

Speaker 1: Isn't it?

Speaker 2: I am not.... Going to suggest anything man, you are crazy.

Speaker 1: Just kidding, but seriously some good place will make our day.

Speaker 2: I will search it up and let you know?

Speaker 1: Good enough.

Speaker 2: Okay. So that's sorted. Glad it was winded up before 8. It's already dark.

Speaker 1: (jokes) No worries I can drop you home if you wish.

Speaker 2: I don't want to fight another hour on this.

Speaker 1: Okaaay.. bye, see you tomorrow.

Speaker 2: Bye good night

Speaker 1: Sweet dreams.

(Both leave)

Conversation 8 (22 March 2026)

Speaker 1: Hi! How are you doing?

Speaker 2: Not very good these days. Life's been quite difficult lately.

Speaker 1: What happened?

Speaker 2: Can you imagine? ... (Gets interrupted)

Speaker 1: No

Speaker 2: I am not joking... I ... (Almost about to cry) You can never understand me (wipes out the tears)

Speaker 1: I don't even have any interest in understanding you or any element of your personal life. Just do the dishes and leave.

Speaker 2: How can someone be so mean?

Speaker 1: Go ask your brother. This has nothing to do with me.

Speaker 2: Don't speak of him with your cursed tongue. He is a great person, a man ahead of his times.

Speaker 1: Yeah, just like the old clock in your storeroom.

Speaker 2: Very shameful of you.

Speaker 1: Even more shameful of you to argue with me instead of doing the dishes.

Speaker 2: Okay, very foolish of me to think that you will try to understand me.

Speaker 1: Of course, I have to oversee a thousand workers here. If I sit here listening to the emotional distress of each and everyone, I would be mad.

Speaker 2: Then why did you even ask about how I am doing in the first place?

Speaker 1: That is basic courtesy, foolish lady. That doesn't mean I would sit here an hour, listening to your personal problems.

Speaker 2: Courtesy, yeah ! Everybody is fake in this world. No body really cares about me. Okay! No problem, I should come straight to the point. I need two thousand rupees advance.

Speaker 1: That won't be possible. You have already exhausted two leaves and it is just 15th today. You need to wait for 10 days.

Speaker 2: BUT I WILL MISS MY EMI????

Speaker 1: Stop shouting if you want to keep your job. I don't have any solution to your problem. Go borrow somewhere else.

Speaker 2: Where should I go then instead of my only employer?

Speaker 1: I don't know. Your problem you manage.

Speaker 2: (Almost begins crying)

Speaker 1: If you want to cry go outside. I don't want any mellow drama here.

Speaker 2: You are very cruel.

Speaker 1: Another word and I can't guarantee your job security.

Speaker 2: (falls down to his legs)

Speaker 1: (kicks her away) No mellow drama I said.

Speaker 2: (almost about to break into tears) please something at least (joins hands)

Speaker 1: The most I can promise is 500 rupees but no more leaves this month.

Speaker 2: But why? I have four of them left.

Speaker 1: For 500. Yes or no. That is the most I can do.

Speaker 2: Is there any kind of work for me? Which can help me financially please??

Speaker 1: Mrs. Raj was looking for someone to take care after her dog for 4 days. She would offer 300 rupees. If you bargain, you could get something upto 350 rupees.

Speaker 2: Okay. You give me 500 rupees for my leaves and please talk to that lady.

Speaker 1: That's fair enough. (Hands over the money) The phone number of Mrs. Raj is +91 98680 90660. Please don't give my reference talking to her.

Speaker 2: Okay. (Leaves)

Conversation 9 (10 April 2026)

Speaker 1: (pulls the brakes with full force and pulls the car over to the side, mutes the music, lowers the window) Hey! What a pleasant surprise to see you.

Speaker 2: How did you end up here?

Speaker 1: Well.... I should be the one asking that question.

Speaker 2: But I asked first.

Speaker 1: So you only answer first please.

Speaker 2: It's a long story and I prefer not to share.

Speaker 1: Okay! That's completely fine. I respect your privacy ma'am. Allow me a leave. Please enjoy. (Rolls up the window, presses the clutch and is about to put the first gear)

Speaker 2: No wait!!

Speaker 1: (Rolls down the window, puts the car on neutral) You called me or are these my ears playing tricks on me?

Speaker 2: Don't you think it is quite rude to leave a young lady stranded in the middle of a deserted highway surrounded by forests in the middle of a cloudy moonless night?

Speaker 1: I agree but it would be even more rude for a person like me to tell a lady at 2 in the night to hop at the back of my car. Like... I mean why would she not mistake me for a kidnapper?

Speaker 2: You really think it is the time to joke like this?

Speaker 1: Who started it?

Speaker 2: Am I a joke to you?

Speaker 1: Yes of course. I mean.... If you want a lift straight away ask for it miss! Why do you want me to offer it? I have better things to think about than a girl stuck on the highway at night who doesn't even care to share the reason.

Speaker 2: But you were the one who pulled over right?

Speaker 1: Yeah! Because I care for you and that's not unconditional. (Angrily, slightly calms down towards the end) If you want something from me, let aside gratitude for a minute, learn to ask for it, I am not a mind reader (folds hands to her)

Speaker 2: You care for me? (In an emotional tone)

Speaker 1: I mean I care for human beings in general and that includes you for the context.

Speaker 2: Okay. So would you help a fellow human being get out of this situation?

Speaker 1: Yeah! But coming back, how did you end up here?

Speaker 2: That is a very long story but long story short, I had to alight a pooled taxi midway as it was turned a makeshift ambulance by the driver since my co passanger faced a chest problem.

Speaker 1: Oh I see. (Unlocks the car) Get in (Speaker 2 proceeds to open the back door) Don't sit at the back. Child lock is on, come here at the co-driver.

(Speaker 2 proceeds to sit at the co-driver seat.)

Speaker 2: Any reason you have childlocks on ?

Speaker 1: The normal locks ain't working.

Speaker 2: That's sad.

Speaker 1: Why is it sad for you? (laughs) For having to sit beside a moron like me for a night drive?

Speaker 2: No no... Not like that. By the way I forgot to ask back. Where are we going?

Speaker 1: Your home. You want to go somewhere else?

Speaker 2: You remember the route?

Speaker 1: Yeah! I visited recently. You don't remember?

Speaker 2: Recently? When?

Speaker 1: Oh you forgot so easily. Remember you hosted that grand lunch?

Speaker 2: Oh yeah yeah. I invited you too. But that's almost 4 years ago. You still remember the directions?

Speaker 1: You got the memory of a goldfish. I can't believe this.

Speaker 2: Really? You expect me to remember who all came to a lunch I hosted 4 years ago? No wonder why you have such a great academic background.

Speaker 1: Yeah! It is true that they support a lot of rote learning and memory based scoring is easy but that's not the only reason.

Speaker 2: Maybe! But wait. I forgot to ask it again. Where were you going initially?

Speaker 1: We are heading to your home. What initially?

Speaker 2: Oh wow! Look who's got the goldfish memory now. How did we meet tonight sir?

Speaker 1: Yeah I remember finding you stranded at the highway but what now?

Speaker 2: Yes, so before finding me, where were you initially heading to?

Speaker 1: Just a casual refuel.

Speaker 2: Refueling at 2 in the night at a place there are no gas stations, and in fact you live 100 m to a gas station! WHY WOULD YOU COME HERE FOR A REFUEL?

Speaker 1: Just casually. It is not quite fixed like that. I should have more reserves of gas. Already as the war escalates, there is no guarantee of gas supply. By the way, you think the Ayatullah is going to open the Hormuz ?

Speaker 2: If misdirection is an art, then you are the artist. Great at evading questions.

Speaker 1: Why? Don't you think you should have some general knowledge?

Speaker 2: But I would like to have some particular knowledge first.. oh come on! You can tell me I won't leak it anywhere.

(To be continued in another life)

Conversation 10 (12 April 2026)

Speaker 1: How do I begin this conversation?

Speaker 2: Well, you have already done that.

Speaker 1: (Awkward smile) Yeah yeah! I see.

Speaker 2: Why are you so nervous? Sweating in an air conditioned room, shaky hands, inability to maintain eye contact and pursing your lips again and again are not signs that signal a very positive attitude.

Speaker 1: (Covering up with a fake smile) Stress? Stress my foot. I am completely fine. No issues.

Speaker 2: No you are not but it's okay you don't necessarily have to be completely fine 24/7. It's completely normal to have ups and downs in life. We all face such situations at some point or the other and believe me or not, there is good time ahead, just have faith in yourself.

Speaker 1: (Capital letters indicate shouting) I don't want this drama. I AM OKAY!!!!! Are you getting me? I AM COMPLETELY FINE! You get that?

Speaker 2: It's okay if you don't want to share your problems with me. People speak up only when they feel safe. I would still advice you to dial 14416 anytime you feel low.

Speaker 1: And what is that? Another cyber fraud?

Speaker 2: It's the national mental health helpline man (laughs)

Speaker 1: Really?

Speaker 2: Yes!

Speaker 1: Okay! Anyways let's get back to work.

Speaker 2: Actually we might do it on Friday when you are a bit better.

Speaker 1: Oh come on! (Gets interrupted)

Speaker 2: Please. You don't have to say anything. Just for me ?

Speaker 1: Okay fine. We will meet on Friday then.

Speaker 2: Okay Great! Bye bye.

Conversation 11 (4 May 2026)

Speaker A: I remember it vividly but the kind of [scene] feels surreal... It was a dark moonless [night]... We were walking down the street and chatting over a cup of coffee... She was looking very gorgeous [even] without makeup. The bank manager called me... He asked whether I had pockets in my clothes or not... I yelled at him about the [absurd] kind of question... When I answered in yes he asked another [question]... Wait a minute, why are you filming [me]?

Speaker B: It's just for the proofs. Don't worry. Go ahead.

Speaker A: What proofs!?

Speaker B: Proof of our interaction. Pleasant memories! We will look at old videos after decades and enjoy together. Won't we!?

Speaker A: Okay Okay! So where was I ?

Speaker B: The phone call with the manager.

Speaker A: I didn't want to look to busy on the call or uninterested so I kept smiling at her while on the call... I later got to know through a common friend that she felt it was "creepy"... (Gets interrupted)

Speaker B: What was the second question the manager asked you?

Speaker A: Oh yeah! Coming to it... That foolish moron unprofessional [bank manager]... Told me "Sir, then why don't you keep your money in those pockets... Instead of wasting the bank's time for such a small amount"... It hurt my ego too deeply... And you know what the worst part was?

Speaker B: Tell me.

Speaker A: She laughed at this... Like a witch... She laughed as loud as she could (almost in tears)... What did I not do for her? I almost became a slave to her just to have her laugh at my humiliation... I always supported her in her tough times... She never thanked me... I thought gratitude [or respect] was something that couldn't be asked for [or demanded] (gets interrupted}

Speaker B: You feel betrayed. Don't you?

Speaker A: Shut up ! Let me speak first. And stop filming me. This is not a joke.

Speaker B: (to the camera) Don't film him. (Speaker B continues to film A while instructing an object [the camera] not to do so)

Speaker A: Yeah now I can speak comfortably... I used to feel really bad about the way she treated me in general but that day was my boiling point... I loved her and that love never let me harm her.

Speaker B: How did she treat you in general? And why did you feel bad about it ?

Speaker A: Actually.. you know... Wait, why are you holding this camera like this keep it away, your hands might ache.

Speaker B: No no don't worry about me.

Speaker A: Yeah. Anyways all those whom I worry about betray me at the end.

Speaker B: Don't be upset. I am here to hear you out. So let me repeat How did she treat you in general? And why did you feel bad about it ?

Speaker A: She used to... Make degrading jokes about me... I remember my former professor praising me for being way ahead of my times and her adding "Yeah just like my wrist watch"... I remember her ringing me up and yelling at me for 15 minutes for not being a good friend... I heard it all quietly and asked in a feeble voice "Can I speak?" She said that she was in a bad mood and just wanted to vent out her frustration so she dialed me... I felt so bad about it but didn't complain... When I made a joke about her height, she slapped me in front of [at least] 15 people... I consoled myself that she might be in a bad mood for jokes... The other day she pushed me off a staircase as I was "going down too slowly"... I never said anything... And most recently this bank manager incident... Should I not feel bad about it? If I don't say something doesn't necessarily mean I am not feeling bad... For example... I am not saying anything to you for filming me despite my verbal denial of consent doesn't mean I don't feel bad about it... (Gets interrupted)

Speaker B: I am not filming you.

Speaker A: You won't be a moron to hold a camera to my face for this whole while... But just send the tape to her... She should know how I feel.

Speaker B: Let me make it clear. I am not filming you, you can check my phone's gallery for proof. (He is filming through the camera)

Speaker A: Show me.

Speaker B: Here

(Speaker A finds no proof in the gallery)

Speaker A: I am sorry for doubting you. Actually her betrayal has left me with severe trust issues... The storm may have passed but the shivers are still in my heart.

Speaker B: This is a classic case of PTSD. Don't worry you will heal soon. One thing I find common in all your accounts is an inability to express yourself. Don't be like this. Be vocal and confident.

Speaker A: Maybe you are right.

Speaker B: Maybe? (laughter)

Speaker A: (laughs) There is no certainty in this world anyways.

Speaker B: I am glad that at least I was able to bring a smile on your face.

Speaker A: Thanks a lot. You are really my true friend.

Speaker B: Your welcome.

Speaker A: Okay! It's too late now. I think I should leave now.

Speaker B: As you wish. Good night

Speaker A: Good Night.

Conversation 12 (12 May 2026)

(G.i. is short for "gets interrupted")

(Capital letters indicate shouting)

Speaker 1: Hey! Good Evening. How are you doing?

Speaker 2: Great great... What about you?

Speaker 1: I am also good. Hop in and let's leave.

Speaker 2: Yeaaah... Let's leaveee

Speaker 1: You Okay? Why are you sweating so much?

Speaker 2: Yeah yeah! Actually I am a little bit nervous since it's our first trip. That too late at night

Speaker 1: Have you kept all the essentials?

Speaker 2: Yes.

Speaker 1: Have you locked your house ?

Speaker 2: Yes.

Speaker 1: Do you trust me?

(Long pause)

Speaker 1: Okay. I get why you are nervous.

Speaker 2: No no it's not like that. Don't get offended.

Speaker 1: No, I don't get offended that easily... Just wanted to confirm what exactly it is that you don't trust me with.

Speaker 2: It is not that I don't trust you at all ... (G.i)

Speaker 1: See, trust is two types, trust in capability and trust in intent. To be precise, which one do you lack and in relation to what?

Speaker 2: Both of them in relation to this trip.

Speaker 1: Okay. Since it is going to be a long trip I think we need to build basic level of trust before leaving otherwise it won't be possible to accomplish our joint objectives. Coming to capabilities, what do you think it is I can't do.

Speaker 2: To be very frank, I would say you won't be a great companion since you aren't good at basic French, you don't know how to use AI llms at their best level, you ask for help with basic things such as playing songs. You... (G.i.)

Speaker 1: Okay, I get your frustration and all that you have listed is true that I won't be able to interact with local people or even fill or compile the survey information. This is completely true except for the fact that I have made efforts towards learning what I don't know and I am changing myself to adapt to technology.

Speaker 2: its okay you are learning and I respect that, but you are essentially beginning to dig a well when your house is on fire.

Speaker 1: I get your frustration. Now let me ask you back. Do you know how to drive this car? Do you know how to set up a tent? Do you know how to deal with a dacoity attempt in the middle of a highway? .... (G.i.)

Speaker 2: You think you can fight the dacoits?

Speaker 1: This is not something to flex but I have witnessed 23 dacoity attempts, 17 while on the driver seat and have been robbed only once which was my first time. That experience has led me to never be robbed again.

Speaker 2: Is that area so unsafe?

Speaker 1: I won't comment on the safety of an area but my experiences say that we must not let our guard down. The situation has especially worsened since the left government has left power.

Speaker 2: Yeah! I get you.

Speaker 1: That's the reason. Your capabilities are different, mine are different, and we have to complement each other. A 21 year old girl can't feel safe in that survey zone alone and an illiterate can't collect or compile the census data, but together we can and we should.

Speaker 2: Okay (gets inside the car)

Speaker 1: Should we leave ?

Speaker 2: Yes

Speaker 1: (Begins driving towards the destination) By the way, what was the intent point you didn't trust me with?

Speaker 2: To be honest, I initially thought that you were no more than a perverted psychopath who would do something wrong to me on the course of this trip (laughs)

Speaker 1: Well... (Short pause) (G.i)

Speaker 2: You are hurt by that comment?

Speaker 1: I wish that comment hurted me but it didn't. Most part of your evaluation is actually correct and I wonder how were you able to remove the mask of social roleplay and decipher my true nature.

Speaker 2: What? Am I hearing this right?

Speaker 1: Your question confirms that your ears are working perfectly fine.

Speaker 2: Really?

Speaker 1: Yeah! But I am surprised how you got to know that?

Speaker 2: It was just a gut.. (G.i.)

Speaker 1: God dammit these gut feelings have made my job so difficult.

Speaker 2: (Wierd facial expressions)

Speaker 1: I mean generally I stay one step ahead of my victims but gut feelings are something I struggle with... I really need good advise on how to be gut friendly or at least how to be so charming people stop trusting thier gut with me..

Speaker 2: Victims?

Speaker 1: Yeah! What else would you call them?

Speaker 2: So my distrust with you intent was well placed?

Speaker 1: Not really. I wasn't considering harming you and am still not considering anything like that because this report is quite necessary for me and my job. Even though I have deep rooted fantasies for women like you, I wouldn't have harmed you since I am not capable of preparing the report on my own.

Speaker 2: And what are you going to do after the report is submitted?

Speaker 1: Well, I would advise you to submit the report only after we reach back home.

Speaker 2: Otherwise you would?

Speaker 1: What can an illiterate moron do in the middle of a highway to a lone young girl?

Speaker 2: A lot of harm!!!

Speaker 1: Don't be so tense. Just look at your face it is already red

Speaker 2: WHY THE HECK SHOULD I NOT BE TENSE????

Speaker 1: Calm down calm down.

Speaker 2: CALM DOWN?

Speaker 1: Relax relax. Don't be so impulsive.

Speaker 2: I am being impulsive? What should I do when I can notice even the doors are child-locked.

Speaker 1: Yes. They are child locked but that doesn't justify aggression. I am at the very least 10 times more powerful and have still not done anything in response to this violence.

Speaker 2: (An eerie sense of fear on the face)

Speaker 1: See, we are already 7.2 Km away from home and you won't find another vehicle on this road for at least 20 minutes. And even if you find one, they will hardly stop for you. Local robbers also use young girls asking for lifts as baits to get the drivers to pull over. An experienced driver would never help you and an inexperienced one will most probably get you robbed or even kidnapped. Forget about walking back 7.2 Km. You are more safe inside this car than outside, no matter how you think about it.

Speaker 2: Safety might be relative rather than absolute but knowing your true character, I won't be comfortable throughout this trip is something I can definitely say.

Speaker 1: You can have your fears and I wont complain. The only thing I told you is that I won't harm you and I also proved it just now. I had an easy excuse of you being restless to justify the use of force but I didn't. I think that makes my intent clear.
Speaker 2: Okay. Go ahead.

(Speaker 1 resumes driving and a long silence follows ultimately culminating in speaker 2 sleeping on the co passanger seat)
